Textiles and Clothing Department

Internship Report of Academic Year 2024-25

As part of the curriculum, the final-year students of the Department of Textiles and Clothing undertook a 30-day summer internship aimed at providing hands-on exposure to real-world practices in the textile, garment and fashion industry. This internship served as a bridge between academic learning and practical application, allowing students to understand the functioning of various sectors such as textile processing, garment manufacturing, and boutique operations. This year, the department collaborated with several well-established organizations, including MEEMANSHA Garment Manufacturing Unit (Anand), Prapti Redefine Yourself Boutique (Vallabh Vidyanagar), Mafatlal Industries Limited (Nadiad), and Chutaki's Creation (Anand). These units span diverse areas of the industry—from large-scale manufacturing to high-end boutique services—offering students a rich and comprehensive experience.

During their internship, students were exposed to a wide range of industrial and design activities. At textile manufacturing units like Mafatlal Industries, students observed processes such as fabric dyeing, printing, and finishing, and gained an understanding of quality control and eco-friendly practices. In garment units like MEEMANSHA, they learned about mass production techniques including cutting, stitching, and garment assembly, and also became familiar with industry-standard machinery and standard operating procedures. At design studios and boutiques like Prapti and Chutaki's Creation, students worked closely with designers, assisting in haute couture garment creation, client-based customization, fabric selection, embellishment, and boutique management. They were also trained in using CAD software for digital sketching, pattern development, and fashion illustration.

Each student was given specific projects such as developing capsule collections, preparing trend and mood boards, assisting with production orders, or supporting event-based garment creation. Through these projects, they applied their academic knowledge to practical scenarios, enhancing their problem-solving and design skills. Alongside technical learning, students also developed essential soft skills including time management, punctuality, professionalism, communication, and teamwork. Their creativity and dedication were highly appreciated by industry mentors, and in some cases, they were encouraged to take up freelance or future job opportunities.

At the end of the internship, all students received certificates of completion from their respective training organizations. The feedback from industry partners was overwhelmingly positive, highlighting the interns' quick adaptability, innovative ideas, and professional attitude. Overall, the internship proved to be a highly enriching and transformative experience, equipping students with both the confidence and the competence required for successful careers in the textile and fashion industry.
